

COX COMES TO BRIEF AS COX AND SHIPMATES VICTIMS OF BANDITS AND STORMS AT SEA

By CHRISTOPHER BELL

This is the last of a series of articles on the adventures of James L. Cox, who was kidnapped in September, 1952.

PART IV

It didn't had put into the Galapagos just when the Windjammer and he probably would have done all dignity and jumped for pure joy. For lo and behold a completely new plateau of land had suddenly risen up from the sea, and no living man so far had seen it, much less explore it, until Cox and Miss Poor trekked over it.

It wasn't the most pleasant of hikes for them to take, the area being covered with all sorts of sea creatures that had died immediately after having been suddenly brought up on their land lift from the bottom of the sea.

So as soon as Cox could jot down necessary notes for the Hydrographic Office, they left the New Land, as it soon became known, and returned to the inhabited sections of the Galapagos.

Made up of sixteen different islands lying on the equator, the group shaped like the saddle-backed turtle for which they are named, the Galapagos was a regular preserve for sea lions and penguins, seen nowhere else except in the Arctic, sea and land iguanas remarkable for their size and display of flora and fauna such as put Darwin in a dither and kept him entranced there for many months.

It was on these islands, by the way, that Darwin reached his theory of evolution that was later to cause such a commotion. The crew of the Windjammer stayed on the islands for four months, becoming friends of the families that lived there and promising to "drop in" again carry on for them, as they were carrying on to their next port of call letters that were in the drum on their arrival, and also taking on a new crewman, Sinbad, a black (and they hoped, lucky) white, they upped anchor and sailed for Easter Island, a tiny dot in the vast Pacific.

Twenty-six days and a dozen assorted storms later they reached it.

Whatever luck Sinbad could bring them they needed in that unbelievable passage to Easter Island.

One storm after another shredded their sails and ragtagged the rigging until they looked like an aquatic scarecrow jorking erratically across the Pacific. And of course that modern miracle, the ship's engine, lay doggo through the whole hard passage.

Finally one of the crew sighted Easter Island through the sheets of rain, and all of them took heart again. However, as they neared the island they were a little dashed to find that it had no natural harbor or sheltered cove they could take anchorage in, and since the storm was still upon them, they lay off the shoreline, silently wondering how anything with such a springlike name as Easter Island could look so barren and bleak.

But it was land, and as soon as the storm was over, about two days later, they eased toward the leeward side and were met immediately by the governor of the island, filled with felicitations.

This should have immediately struck some kind of warning bell in their minds, considering all the trouble they'd had on Providencia after such a friendly official greeting. But it did not, and the rather bedraggled adventurers were happy to disembark and stay awhile. It soon became apparent that their stay was going to be longer than they had anticipated, for the ship needed a great deal of repairing. And, too, it was now July, mid-winter below the equator, and they were in the midst of the worst of the stormy season.

In between blows Cox, Nichol, Say and a couple of native helpers worked at putting the Windjammer back into sailing shape.

A particularly bad storm held them offshore, trying to ride it out away from the rocky coast, for ten long days, with no water except a two quart bottle they unexpectedly found in a cabinet.

This nightmarish interval gave Cox an opportunity to test out Dr. Bonhard's theory about drinking sea water. Cox mixed a gallon of it with his quart of fresh water, and the crew sipped it from time to time with no ill effects.

This storm about put the finishing touches to the Windjammer and they had to take all equipment, stores, clothing, instruments—in fact everything of value including Miss Poor's jewelry—off the ship, trying to salvage what in case another storm blew them out again and capsized the yacht.

No sooner had they piled all these possessions on the beach than a horde of mounted savages, a rag-tag, polygot brigade, topped the hills that sloped down to the sea and bore down upon them, snatching up all the pitifully heaped possessions on the beach and making off with them as nothing was heard from all this sailing and it finally dawned on Cox and Miss Poor that they were being kept virtually incommunicado on the island, although to all appearances honored guests of the governor.

Finally, after having been both stoned and shot at by the natives on one of their hikes on the island, the Captain and Peggy Poor managed to get a cable through to Rep. Herbert and to a friend of Miss Poor, the editor of a New York paper.

Both of these got busy. And in the Fall of 1954, the Chilean government sent its training ship, the Esmeralda, for them and took them to Valparaiso.

From there, Cox got passage, working his way, on a foreign ship bound for New York. Miss Poor remained in Valparaiso for a while, hoping to force the Chilean government to make financial reimbursement for the loss of her ship and equipment, but eventually to the lawlessness of the islanders.

Finally she too returned to the States, but whether she will buy and outfit another Windjammer and continue her interrupted world cruise remains to be seen.

Cox, though, in spite of the hardships, trials and tribulations of the last two years is only waiting for someone to say: "I don't want to go back to sea."

To make it easier to finance new industry, he explained that he would set up a revolving fund to provide 50 per cent of the operating capital of a new plant to match 50 per cent raised by local citizens by selling stock.

"Under the present law the community already can issue bonds for the construction of a building. With this additional provision the citizens can obtain the necessary money to begin operation of a new plant."

He proposed a survey of every community in Mississippi to determine what, if any, it was doing for the community would be suited for. The former Governor said: "It is shown that a community has an adequate labor supply, a market for the products and the raw material then they should be given every assistance in establishing a factory or plant."

Wright spoke at Calkins Academy at a picnic in the morning and was scheduled to talk in Columbia at 3 p.m. and at Crystal Springs at 6:30 p.m.

At the same time, it was announced through the Jackson office that enrollment for the first three months of 1955 in the Blue Cross plan of the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico brought the total enrollment to 45,475,375 persons.

The announcement quoted Richard M. Jones, Chicago, director of the Blue Cross Commission, as saying that the membership growth is proof that the American people are finding their greatest security in meeting the cost of hospitalization through voluntary non-profit health care plans like Blue Cross.

America's gone Ford!

AND WE'RE CELEBRATING WITH LEADERSHIP DEALS DURING OUR GREAT SUMMER BANDWAGON SELL-A-BRATION!

This promises to be Ford's biggest sales year... even bigger than '54, when more people bought Ford than any other car. So, we're celebrating in advance by making money-saving Leadership Deals.

Last year, Ford won 284,173 new friends... more new friends than all other cars combined!

When one maker sells a whopping 284,173 more cars during a year when competitive makes barely held their own, it's a record that makes must be worth more. And the '55 Ford, introduced last November, stepped up the year-end sales race to an even higher tempo!

Ford sells more because it's worth more! There's no secret about Ford's success. It's simply because Ford offers more of the things people want...

more value per dollar! For example, only Ford can offer beauty inspired by the Thunderbird. Only Ford in its field can offer an advanced Y-block V-8 or smoother Angle-Polished Ride. And people know they can buy a Ford with confidence... because of the high resale value Ford has enjoyed for years.

Take your Test Drive now! We invite you to come in and let a '55 Ford prove its extra worth to you. You do the driving... you be the judge!

...other words, by...
...practice, although...
...the state dwellings in the...
...with few exceptions...
...been torn down. Also, the...
...Housing Administration...
...and more ambitious...
...government bureau have a way...
...over the country in order to...
...from big city slums.

The House finally rebelled...
...against the fantastically mounting...
...cost of the program and for the...
...last three years has refused to...
...continue it, only to have the Senate...
...insist upon restoring it, with a...
...resulting compromise.

OPPOSED TO PROGRAM

Personally we have opposed...
...this program from its inception. Our...
...opposition is based on the following...
...facts:

1. The cost of the program is...
...prohibitive. For example, it was...
...shown in the hearings that if the...
...Government built these houses...
...and then gave them outright to...
...the tenants, it would save 14 billion...
...dollars. The "saving" illustrates...
...the astronomical costs involved.

2. It is unsound for any agency...
...to be able to issue its own government-...
...backed bonds without coming back to the...
...Congress for approval. Such a practice...
...could destroy the credit of the Government.

3. It kills the initiative of the...
...individual. For, once a person becomes...
...a tenant he cannot substantially improve...
...his lot in life without being removed from...
...his house as above the income limit.

4. It is unjust and unfair for the...
...government to tax one individual, who is...
...frugal and builds his own modest...
...little home, to furnish a man who works...
...alongside him, but who is not frugal and...
...industrious, a better home than the taxpayer...
...can afford.

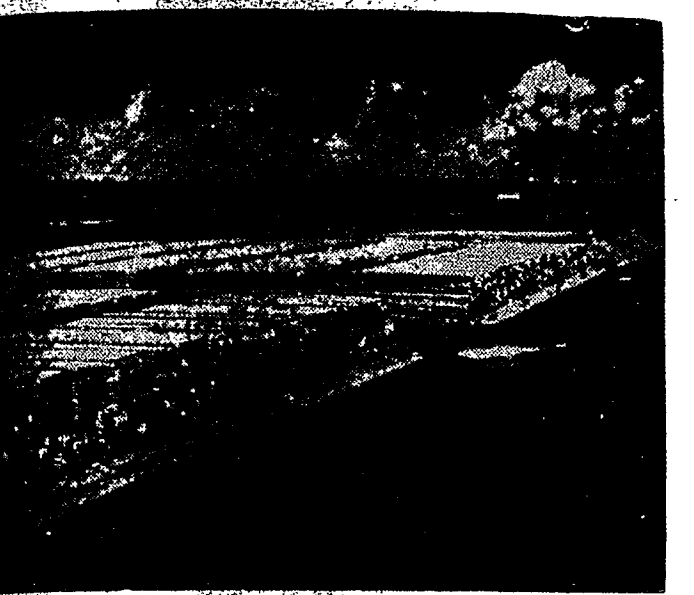

5. Such a program results in the...
...regimentation of the tenants. For, it was...
...disclosed in the hearings that in many...
...instances the tenants were required to...
...vote "right" or face removal.

6. But aside from the merits of...
...the legislation, there is another very...
...serious objection. The Supreme Court...
...recently held that, since these projects...
...involved Federal funds, there could be no...
...segregation of the races in them. This...
...simply means that the widespread...
...construction of these units would furnish...
...additional causes for friction among our...
...white and colored people, which is already...
...bad enough with the Supreme Court ruling...
...on school segregation.

Moreover, one of the Negro...
...Congressmen, Adam Powell, of the Harlem...
...District, served notice in the press that...
...if the public housing bill ever reached...
...the floor, he would offer an amendment...
...specifically prohibiting segregation. As a...
...matter of fact, since the Negro is in the...
...lower economic strata, most of these...
...projects are now occupied by them. We, of...
...course, have no objection to Negroes...
...occupying these units as such, provided that...
...they can be in separate projects.

But this new non-segregation...
...development means that no more housing...
...would be built in the South, though we in...
...the South would continue paying taxes to...
...build these units in other sections of the...
...country.

OUR STATE

GIANT TOWS

The first steamboat ever to be seen on the Mississippi river in January, 1912. The boat was built in Pittsburgh and was named the "Orleans." Travel by steamboat became popular with all classes — planters, adventurers and gamblers. The romantic Mississippi has bowed to progress. But the spirit of the river still remains. Not infrequently will giant, 1200-foot tows engage in a race as frenzied and spirited as did the Natchez and Robert E. Lee ninety years ago.

MISSISSIPPI POWER COMPANY

WRIGHT CLIMAXES 4-DAY CAMPAIGN AT JACKSON

JACKSON, July 14. — Climaxing his four-day campaign in North and Central Mississippi, Wright brought his campaign for Governor to Jackson Thursday night with a declaration that he is the "only candidate" who has submitted a "practical plan" for legally continuing the state's segregated public school system.

Wright also emphasized his objective, as governor for the next four years, "to provide every farmer with a hard-surfaced highway to bigger and better markets."

He recalled that the present farm-to-market road program was carried forward under his last administration, "on a pay-as-you-go basis," and cited that "today we have almost 2,000 miles of rural roads," in addition to the state's primary highway system.

Wright pledged that with his return to the governor's office, he would be able to issue his own government-backed bonds without coming back to the Congress for approval. Such a practice could destroy the credit of the Government.

3. It kills the initiative of the individual. For, once a person becomes a tenant he cannot substantially improve his lot in life without being removed from his house as above the income limit.

4. It is unjust and unfair for the government to tax one individual, who is frugal and builds his own modest little home, to furnish a man who works alongside him, but who is not frugal and industrious, a better home than the taxpayer can afford.

5. Such a program results in the regimentation of the tenants. For, it was disclosed in the hearings that in many instances the tenants were required to vote "right" or face removal.

6. But aside from the merits of the legislation, there is another very serious objection. The Supreme Court recently held that, since these projects involved Federal funds, there could be no segregation of the races in them. This simply means that the widespread construction of these units would furnish additional causes for friction among our white and colored people, which is already bad enough with the Supreme Court ruling on school segregation.

Moreover, one of the Negro Congressmen, Adam Powell, of the Harlem District, served notice in the press that if the public housing bill ever reached the floor, he would offer an amendment specifically prohibiting segregation. As a matter of fact, since the Negro is in the lower economic strata, most of these projects are now occupied by them. We, of course, have no objection to Negroes occupying these units as such, provided that they can be in separate projects.

But this new non-segregation development means that no more housing would be built in the South, though we in the South would continue paying taxes to build these units in other sections of the country.

Wright contended his opponents "charge falsely" that he advocates a "police state" in his program to continue segregated schools.

"In Webster's Dictionary," he said, "the word, police, is given two major definitions. Permit me to read you the first.

"Police, according to Mr. Webster, means the control and regulation of the internal affairs of a state, exercised by its government, especially in matters concerning public health, comfort, morals and safety."

"The same dictionary, of course, gives the word, police, another meaning, which has to do with the duty of enforcing the laws against crime and criminals."

"When I refer to police power in connection with legally continuing our segregated schools, it's obvious that the first definition of the word, police, is the one which applies."

Wright contended that "those who tell us we have no record, but to comply with the school segregation decision of the Supreme Court in Washington are handing us propaganda."

MISSISSIPPI SCHOLARSHIPS

AWARDED AT MU SINCE 1948

A total of 200 advanced nursing scholarships have been granted by the University of Mississippi since 1948, according to Miss Christine O'Brien, chairman of the department of nursing.

The scholarship program was initiated by the Mississippi Legislature in the 1949 regular session and seeks to raise the professional standards of registered nurses now in practice in the state.

Mississippi pioneered, in this work, and its program has since been adopted with modifications by more than a score of other states.

Like a similar plan for medical students, the nursing scholarship program does not require recipients of the grants to reimburse the state. They are, however, obligated to practice in Mississippi for as many months as they receive scholarship assistance. Such practice may include head nursing, supervision, teaching, public health work, or industrial work, but service for the federal government in the state is not acceptable as a discharge of the obligation.

ROSS BARNETT OFFERS
An Effective Plan To Maintain Segregation

The battle to retain segregation will require courageous, able, legal leadership. Lawsuits against segregation will be filed in many Mississippi school districts.
Ross Barnett has 26 years experience in the practice of law—in both state and federal courts. Here is what Ross Barnett says:
"We can raise many technical points that will have to be passed on by the U. S. Supreme Court, such as paying and other matters. Because of my long experience in legal procedure, I can raise more technical points than the Supreme Court can counter in the next hundred years."
As long as Ross Barnett is Governor, Mississippi will have segregated schools.

FARM SAFETY
Take time during the 12th National Farm Safety Week, July 24-30, 1955, to check up on the accident hazards around your home and on your farm.
Falls are still the greatest killer among farm accidents. Take some time to see that your ladders are safe, that your stairways are uncluttered and in safe condition, place guards or handrails on dangerous places.
Watch out for livestock. They account for one out of four farm work accidents. Keep bulls in side safe fences. Keep children away from livestock.
Don't depend on luck with your farm machinery. Make sure that the equipment is in safe operating condition. Make sure that all guards are safety devices are in place. Do not let children ride on the back of tractors. Stop machines before unclogging, oiling or adjusting.
Do not get in too big a hurry when operating a tractor. Take your time and do a safe job.
When on the highways, be careful and courteous. Obey all highway regulations, make sure your vehicle is in good condition and has all proper lights and good brakes.
Excessive speed makes waste of human lives on highways. Always drive within the legal speed limits and slow down after dark and in bad weather—never overdrive your visibility.
Remove trees or shrubs near your farm driveway that obstruct your view.
SILAGE
Harvest your silage crops when they are in the proper stage of maturity.
Corn should be cut and ensiled when the grain is well denting. Do not wait until it is completely mature. When this is done, the corn is too dry, it doesn't pack as well and requires the addition of water.
Sorghum is ready for silage harvest when the seed are in the heavy dough stage.
Got your silo ready yet? If you haven't dug it or built it yet, do so in advance of harvest.

WEED CONTROL
Worried about weeds in your pastures? If so, contact your local county agent and ask for the new leaflet on weed control. It contains information for getting rid of bitterweed, cocklebur, Canada thistle, coffee weed and many others. Ask for it by name, "Weed Control, Extension Publication 304. It is free and yours for the asking.

MISSISSIPPI
SEAFOOD INDUSTRY
UNIVERSITY, Miss.—The Mississippi Seafood Industry and Petroleum Geologists have displayed great interest in a study of Gulf Coast sediments released this week by the Mississippi State Geological Survey in its Bulletin 82.
The Bulletin, entitled "Sediments of Mississippi Sound Inshore Waters," gives a cumulative report of investigations made in the summer of 1952, 1953 and 1954 by Dr. Richard R. Priddy, professor of geology at Mississippi College.
Its importance to seafood men and petroleum geologists is indicated by their requests for several hundred copies of the bulletin even before it had been released.
The project, which was financed by the Mississippi Seafood Commission and the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, sought through a study of the physical and chemical nature of the bottom materials to determine the types of bottoms most favorable to the production of oysters, shrimp, fish and other organisms.
From the point of view of the seafood industry, the survey has already proved its worth: Oyster plantings made at recommended sites in the western part of Mississippi Sound by the Seafood Commission late in 1952 had produced oysters four inches long by 1954.
Dr. Priddy recommends that the studies be continued and believes that further exploration may lead to the discovery of further promising sites for new oyster beds.
Although the study was undertaken primarily for its utility to the seafood industry, Dr. William Clifford Morse, director of the Mississippi State Geological Survey, describes it as "almost of equal importance in general geology."
The most important aspect of the study from a geological standpoint is Dr. Priddy's discovery

More Money In Your Pockets...
Fielding Wright's Plan To Raise The Income Of Every Mississippian
How can we raise the income of all Mississippians... How can we raise the money to provide all the things our State needs... and still not raise taxes?
Fielding Wright's Development Program For Agriculture and Industry is the Answer. It Will...
1. Increase The Income Of All Mississippians
2. Increase Our Cash Farm Income
3. Bring About The Construction Of Home-Owned Processing And Marketing Plants Throughout The State, And Thereby...
—Provide more payroll dollars to swell the volume of retail and wholesale trade in our State, and —Provide bigger and more stable markets for the wealth of agricultural products which our farmers are capable of producing if they are assured adequate and profitable markets. And then, with additional millions of dollars in the pockets of all Mississippians, and with millions of new dollars passing every year through the channels of trade in our State, we can:
4. Do far more for our common schools.
5. Provide far better salaries for our teachers.
6. Provide more money for our sick and aged and for health and guidance services for our children.
7. Provide more money for our colleges and universities.
8. Build more and better rural roads and main highways.
9. Meet the financial needs of our municipalities.
10. Provide all our people with the essential services they need—gas, electricity and up to the quality enjoyed by many other states in the Nation.
AND WE CAN DO IT ALL WITH FIELDING WRIGHT'S PLAN—WITHOUT RAISING TAXES!
—HOW FIELDING WRIGHT'S PLAN WILL WORK—
Every county will be surveyed to determine what plants are needed. A Revolving Fund of at least $10,000,000 will be created by private industry in Mississippi to provide the home ownership of new plants. Once a community has raised funds for a site and building for a new industry—as is now done under the present BAWI law—in order to have home ownership of the industry, they must raise by stock subscription 50% of the money needed to equip and operate the plant. The Revolving Fund will provide the other 50%. If enough private funds are not available, the Revolving Fund will match the local community's part on a State loan basis. Local citizens can take all the stock at the beginning, if they are able to do so, or they can buy up the stock held by the Revolving Fund at any time they want to.
We will also intensify our efforts to develop our natural resources, and under Fielding Wright's program increased part and parcel and certain activity will provide gas, oil, minerals and additional trade volume in Mississippi. Based on conservative estimates, Fielding Wright's program, by increasing income just to the average of other states, would bring Mississippians $100,000,000 more annual income and our state would have additional yearly revenue from taxes not alone.

Personals

Mrs. F. E. Preis, whose home is usually filled with guests, is usually filled with guests during the summer months. She has her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Preis, of New Orleans, with children Mary, John, Robert, Anita and Richard, expected on Sunday for a two-day visit. Re-Elect
BOYCE HOLLEMAN
DISTRICT ATTORNEY

I sincerely invite your careful investigation of my private and public life. The court records of this District show that I have devoted myself to the duties of the District Attorney.

If you believe that I have fought for those things which are right and honest and for you, the people of this District, I humbly and earnestly ask your help in this campaign.

Sincerely,
BOYCE HOLLEMAN

ago, where he stated to the effect that if elected Sheriff, he would close gambling and stop the selling and making of illegal whiskey. About a month later he again got on the stand at Dedeaux and retracted his original speech, stating that he had been misunderstood, and that his speech had been misinterpreted—that he did not mean to say he would stop the selling and making of illegal whiskey, nor stop the gambling.

Yet in other sections of the County he promises to stop all gambling and close barrooms. WHICH SPEECH DOES HE MEAN? This is an insult to the intelligence of all the good people listening to him!

Mr. Ladner admits that I did play a big part in cancelling the Road Contract. It is true records speak for themselves, but they can certainly be twisted around to the convenience of any good twister.

The Millage may have been changed around from but taxes have never increased, even though from 1940 to 1935, when the road and school taxes were increased. As a matter of fact, the millage was reduced to the rate of 1.5 mills, which actually amounted to a reduction of 10 cents in the first time I have ever been elected as Sheriff.

Only recently Mr. Ladner was a party in cancelling around the millage in the city of Bay St. Louis, whereby the taxpayers ended up actually paying no taxes. With this increased revenue Mr. Ladner's salary has been increased. It must also be remembered that Mr. Ladner is campaigning on taxpayer money, as with 2 1/2 years more to serve as City Commissioner he has not resigned this office.

In my eagerness to break the political machine, I did go along with the politicians in some cases, watching my opportunity at all times to "pop my whip" and as I have stated in my editorials the fun begun in 1945 and 1946 when I learned that County equipment had been taken out of Hancock County for use elsewhere, without my knowledge. It was with this knowledge that after ordering this equipment brought back, we were successful in forcing a cancellation of the road contract. This spelled, once and for all, the end of the County Road Contract. This action by the contractor furnished us with the necessary whip to force this cancellation.

Then upon revealing and stopping the misuse of funds, discontinuing of unnecessary bond issues, disbursing of County Funds in legitimate channels, this combined with the cancelling of road contract, which had control of all county employees, was the definite breaking of the backbone that ruled County and City politics. This is a known fact by most of the people in this county.

And in 1947 the Citizens showed their appreciation by re-electing me with the largest majority of votes ever received by a Board Member in beat 5, in a second primary. Also in this election the largest upset in Hancock County politics happened. Out of nine major County offices, there were seven replacements, namely: Tax Assessor, Clerk of Courts, Sheriff and Superintendent of Education and three new Board of Supervisors. The only two remaining were Johnson Shaw of Beat 3 and Ed Ortte of Beat 5. This was certainly proof of appreciation by the voters.

Mr. Ladner was not holding any office at that time. Everyone knows that with the breaking of this political organization, which controlled County and City politics, Sylvan Ladner, who calls himself "the handsome blackhaired politician who put up such a terrific fight to be elected City Commissioner in the next City Election, was handed his commission-ership on a silver platter. As he slid in on my coat-tail to a very easy victory. It must also be remembered that one of the strong commissioners, whose place he succeeded, did not run for re-election.

As far as the COUNTY DREDGE BOAT is concerned, I and all the people wanted a sand beach for seawall protection, and we thought this was a good deal. However, the project proved impractical. The selling of the dredge boat was a saving to the County.

The amount was all it was worth after this dredge was severely damaged by the 1947 hurricane.

I most positively took care of the Roads and Bridges in my beat. Mr. Ladner asked how many roads I blacktopped with County funds while in office. He has brought something up here that I had actually forgotten among the many things I have done for the County. During my administration we blacktopped the following roads: The Lakeshore road, one of the main roads in Beat 5, was blacktopped from the beach to US Highway 90. This road was not a state or Federal road, but with my connection and friendship with the Mississippi State Highway Commissioner he cooperated with me with the blacktopping of this road with the cost to the County not to exceed $2,000. Also practically all the streets in Clermont Harbor, with the cooperation of the Civic Association and the people of Clermont Harbor, were blacktopped, with the cost to the County less than $1,500. The rebuilding of the main street through Bay St. Louis that was washed away by the hurricane, which is in the City Limits of Bay St. Louis, was rebuilt by myself and the rest of the Board members, at a very low cost of about $25,000. Most of this cost should have been paid by the city. But the only expense to the city of Bay St. Louis was a little curbing and outside work. Would you call that squandering of money or not taking care of the roads?

Yes, records speak for themselves and my record certainly was one of construction and economy!

During this campaign I have at no time said anything against any of my opponents, including Mr. Ladner. And I don't believe that my friends throughout the county, who are supporting me so actively, have resorted to any mudslinging in any way whatsoever. I know that some folks like to start bad political gossip to cause ill feelings between candidates. I am reasonably sure that none of my many friends, as they are all fine ladies, gentlemen and children, would resort to such low tactics, as the common phrase known as MUDSLINGING.

I am running strictly on my own character, reputation and platform and not on the demerits of Mr. Ladner, nor anyone else. I must say that I am surprised and amused by this sudden attack of Mr. Ladner against me. However, I am very happy that he brought up these different subjects.

I ERNESTLY SOLICIT the help and support of all the fine people of Hancock County in my desire to be your next Sheriff and Tax Collector.

Sincerely,
ED P. ORTTE

"THE BALLAD OF ED P. ORTTE"

By Norvin Kelly

Many people, especially children, have requested the words to this little ballad, so I am taking this means to comply with their wishes.

Listen while we tell you about a man we know He came to this county and helped make it grow He was board of supervisor for twelve long years Bringing people happiness instead of tears.

Ortte, Ed P. Ortte, for sheriff he is bound Ortte, Ed P. Ortte, he'll never let us down.

It was way back yonder in nineteen forty When the people got together and elected Ortte And from that time on the fun begun As he kept the politicians on the run

He stopped all bond issues and lowered the debt If it wasn't for Ortte we'd be paying yet. There was a county contract to maintain the roads And from the gravel pit they dumped many loads Thirty-seven thousand dollars was the yearly amount

But all the added extras you couldn't keep count. They let the roads go and ran up the debt That old county contract we won't ever forget.

Ed Ortte kept fighting and in forty six He was getting the county in a much better fix; With the help of board members they broke the contract

And to the good people they gave the county back Ortte, Ed P. Ortte, for sheriff he is bound Ortte, Ed P. Ortte, he'll never let us down.

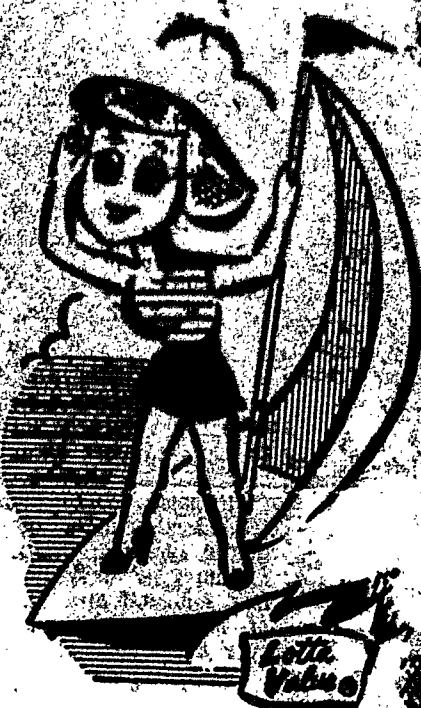

He stopped bond issues and reduced the county debt

He kept the taxes down, a fact we won't forget. He worked to help the people, a job he done well So for our good friend Ortte let's shout and yell Ortte, Ed P. Ortte, for sheriff he is bound Ortte, Ed P. Ortte, he'll never let us down.

So let's make him sheriff and shout three cheers We won't have to worry for the next four years. So vote for Ed P. Ortte on election day And join everybody as you hear them say Ortte, Ed P. Ortte, for sheriff he is bound Ortte, Ed P. Ortte, he'll never let us down.
